

Dana Medical Library Information for CVAHEC Area Providers

Champlain Valley AHEC has renewed its membership in the UVM Dana Medical Library Health Research Associate (HRA) program. What does that mean for Champlain Valley Health Care providers? It means that you may request journal articles and other services from the Library and CVAHEC will pay the fees.

Requesting a full-text journal article

There are three ways to request a journal article:

1. Use the online form <http://library.uvm.edu/dana/services/ill/index.php>
 - Choose your Primary Affiliation as “Health Research Associate”.
 - Enter your contact information and the citation of the article you need
 - Enter CVAHEC in the Budget Number field.
2. Send an email to danadd@uvm.edu . State your contact information and state that you are a CVAHEC region health care provider. Give as full a citation as possible for the articles you need.
3. Call Dana’s Document Delivery/ Interlibrary Loan service group at 656-4382.

Getting help with finding the evidence-based information

To get help, call or email Medical Librarians at the Dana Desk Reference Service. Call the Reference Desk at 656-2201 or email us at danaref@uvm.edu Monday through Friday 10:00am to 4pm. If you need an expert literature search we will do it for you. CVAHEC will cover the charges for you. Just identify yourself to the Dana librarian or staff member as a CVAHEC region health care provider.

While many journal and medical databases require a subscription, many others are free on the Internet. Dana librarians have developed a guide to Free Medical Resources to Support Clinical Care <http://danaguides.uvm.edu/freeresources>.

UVM College of Medicine volunteer faculty/teachers of medical students preceptors are eligible for additional electronic access to journals and databases. Please contact your COM Department head or clerkship director for additional information.
